POLICE COURT CASES

The cases of Josic Sun and Oliver Mc Manus, both of whom were charged with battery, were set for trial September 1 in Judge Bowman's court Friday after moni. According to Assistant City at torner E. A. Rogers, the man and the woman get into a row while they were smoking opium in a Commercial stree cellar. The arm of the woman was broken in the fight that followed he argument with the man, while both were under the influence of optum.

Arthur Moorden, Robert Affbeck and William Wilson were charged with being drink, and all of them pleaded guilty to the charge. Judge Bowings lined them up and delivered a lecture on the ways and doings of those who insist upon spending their wages in drink. Inastoneh as all of the men were married and had familles to support, Judge Bowman discharged them.
